

Changes to Right to Work Verification 01 Oct 2022

Before you commence any employment, employers are legally required to verify your right to work (RTW).

The Covid-19 pandemic temporarily allowed employers to verify RTW via an online video method rather than in-person checks.

From 01 October 22, employers are now required to use an Identity Service Provider (IDSP) in conjunction with a separate video call to verify your ID.

What does this mean for me?

1. Upon commencing your employment with Champion you will be required to provide us with your ID documents, including valid RTW.
2. You will be issued with an invitation to follow a quick & easy process to upload your ID and take a quick selfie.
3. Using clever biometrics, the IDSP will be able to validate your RTW.
4. Champion are still required to verify you via video call. After validating your ID online, you will receive an invitation to attend a video call
